

MIDDLE SCHOOL

Middle School (MS) is an exciting and crucial stage of development for students. Our goal is to assist MS students in developing the maximum potential in their academic and personal life. Our Guidance Office provides support to students, parents and school personnel through a variety of functions. We want to ensure that our MS students make the most out of their academic and personal lives at PAAAS.

Our Guidance Office provides prevention and intervention services to students and their families. The Guidance Counselor is a vital part of the educational program and collaborates with the school principal, teachers and parents. Students are provided with tools to achieve success in middle school and transition to high school.

Our students are provided with academic support and social and emotional services. These services include confidential, academic and anti-bullying counseling; conflict mediation and problem-solving techniques, goal-setting, transitioning from one place to the next, interpersonal relationships, building self-esteem, communications skills, and more.

The main goal of our guidance office is to prepare MS students to transition to high school and become the next generation of productive, contributing members in society.
